PALPH PULITERS, President, 41 Park Row. J. ANGUS SHAW, Transvere, 63 Park Row. COMPTH PULITERS Jr., Secretary, 61 Park Row.

INSUPPORTABLE.

ACTS concerning the real nature of the longshoremen's strike as revealed by The World but increase amaze and recentment at the extent of organized Teutonic conspiracy against law and industry in this country. We see the inevitableness of our demand for the recall of Austria's Ambassador. We begin to grasp how much and how long we have been duped.

As we face such disclosures our sense of insult is ten times deepened at the present moment by the deliberate return to ambiguity which the German Foreign Office displays in discussing the acts of its submarine commanders and the instructions which ntay be assumed to govern such acts. On this paramount question the shiftiness of German policy and practice is insupportable.

Americans do not choose to be kept indefinitely in a state of suspicion. The attitude is not congenial, nor does it fit the national character. We ask to be relieved of the presence of Austria's representative because he himself has proved we cannot trust him.

The overwhelming demand of the nation at this moment is for straight thinking and plain speech from the Wilhelmstrasse. Neither of these things is to be extracted from diplomacy as Germany practices it. The only way to find out what she means is to send home her diplomate and challenge plain talk.

NEVER LESS USE FOR THEM.

OW much did the Constitutional Convention think it represented public sentiment in this State in proposing constitutional permanence for the Public Service Commissions?

What public confidence is there to-day in these bodies? Who wishes to see them perpetuated? Are New Yorkers so pleased with the record of Chairman McCall and some of his docile associates in the Public Service Commission of this district that they would willingly see these gentlemen continued indefinitely in their present comfortable jobs? Have Public Service Commissioners whose gentle dealings with the Interborough and the B. R. T. became a scandal, whose slipshod attitude in the face of serious subway and elevated accidents last winter was little short of criminal, whose dawdling and delay have withheld from an important section of Brooklyn the benefits of eighty cent gas, who have impudently assumed a right to divide authority over city cab service with the Board of Aldermen, who have decreed that cars which catch fire and burn in the subway are nevertheless cafe enough to be run on the elevated-have Public Service Commissioners of this stamp raised themselves or their office in public esteem? On the contrary, voters in this section never had less use for Public Service Commissioners or less enthusiasm for providing $15,000 seleries to maintain them.

CHEATING THE CHILDREN.

CHOOL begins to-day. A million boys and girls in this city are ready for another year of the training indispensable for useful, successful lives. For many of these children every month, every week of schooling is precious. Some must go to work at four-Others can never hope for regular instruction after sixteen. their reach.

Yet at least forty thousand New York school children of all ages and I don't think they'll ever speak who present themselves at school to-day must be refused more than again." a half day's instruction for each school day. There is not room for them. Whether they are beginners or entering upon the last year of a preparation all too short, they are deprived of half the priceless thing they need most.

It is not fair. This city is rich enough to keep up with its educational needs. If the Board of Estimate can't trust the Board of Education with enough money to give the children a square deal, then You can always tell who an anonythere is something seriously out of gear with one or both of these bodies.

Each year the "part time" system gets a firmer hold. Unless it is abolished it will grow steadily worse. Lack of money is a wretched excuse for it. When the city cheats the children it cheats its own best hopes.

Hits From Sharp Wits.

A Macon mother was teiling her young hopeful of seven of the thrilling career of Samson. When she finished the little fellow was silent for a moment. Then throwing back his head and siapping himself upon the chest. "By Joe," said he, "that's what I call a man!"—Macon Telegraph.

"No one should write about women inless he knows them." H'm! On that basis she would have forever remained unhonored and unsung.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The man who thinks that all women are alike does not like women.—Deseret News.

The difference between a compli-A small mind exaggerates every-ment and build flattery is whether you thing that it can comprehend at all, receive it yourself or the other fel-and most of all the importance of its

"No one should write about wome

Letters From the People

Information Wanted.

Will some reader of The Evening World kindly advise me in the fol lowing matter: I have been contemting taking up a course in secretarial work, which includes stenography and typewriting. I am 35 years of age, am fairly well read, and posa good common school education. In the last few years I have studied rammar, rhetoric and general com-position writing. I am a printer by rade and have a fairly good position, but there does not seem to be any combility in sight of my bettering awaif in my present occupation.

demand for secretaries at the preser

To the Editor of The Evening World:

Please decide the following bet. A bets Labor Pay is a legal holiday in New York State. B says no. Who wins?

READER. War With France, 1798-1800.

Did the United States ever have naval battle with France Males, 47,332,122; Females,

To the Editor of The Evening World You would oblige me if you would give me information concerning the difference in numbers between females and males in the United States.
P. MONOHAN.

The Supplementary Note By J. H. Cassel

The Jarr Family By Roy L. McCardell

Copyright, 1915, by the Press Publishing Co. (The New York Evening World).

HAT do you think?" said of the money?" Mrs. Jarr as she greeted bitter quarrel. When they meet now they pretend not to see each other. stocks have gone up in price and a

"How can they quarrel bitterly if they don't speak?" asked Mr. Jarr. "That's the bitterest way people can quarrel," replied Mrs. Jarr. "As long as people speak, no matter how angry they are, there is a chance of their a bitter quarrel. The next thing they will be writing anonymous letters. mous letter is from because women generally write them on hotel stationery, generally the stationery of the swellest hotel they can think of, so it will seem that society is indignant. All you need to do is to go to the writing room of the hotel and get a description of some of the recent ready letter writers, and often the attendant will know the name. In this case you just ask sweetly if Mrs. So and So wasn't in yesterday." "Well, I am glad you are not taking sides," said Mr. Jarr. "Certainly not!" replied Mrs. Jarr.

"If one takes sides, then one only hears one side. But if you don't tak sides you hear both sides." "Then you are strictly neutral?" re

"Most assuredly!" was the reply "Only I do feel bad to think of all the fine clothes that I cannot afford. "Fine clothes? What has that t do with it?" inquired Mr. Jarr.

"Why, don't you see," replied Mrs Jarr, "now that Clara Mudridge-Smith and Mrs. Stryver are bitter enemies they will try to outdress each other more than they used to when they disliked each other as good friends.

"Then extra fine fashions are the uniforms in ladies' wars?" queried

Mr. Jarr. "Why, of course," Mrs. Jarr went on. "Nothing makes the people who dislike you so angry as to think you are prosperous. Mr. Stryver is making a lot of money in Wall Street now, so Mrs. Stryver told me." "Yes," said Mr. Jarr, "he's been handling 'War Bables.' "I can't see how he makes any money that way," replied Mrs. Jarr. "For the poor little war babies are destitute and we have had several collections taken up for them. Do you think that man Stryver gets hold driving the average girl to insomnia in this non-marrying age. .

Mr. Jarr Learns When Women War They Battle in "Full Uniform" them that way, I wouldn't worry." "I am glad to hear you say so."

said Mr. Jarr. "The war bables' of Wall Street is But Mrs. Jarr regarded him suspi- belligerents?" asked Mr. Jarr. the family provider on his something else again than the little clously. "You are glad to hear me ican concerns that make war muni- a war baby myself if I could get tions and sell them abroad. All these some." "Cheer up," said Mr. Jarr. lot of speculating is being done in pect to get some war orders at our them. The boss has been dabbling in shop and if we do. I'll get a commis them and making a lot of money, sion on them and will be able to let you have some extra money." "I wish they were peace orders," "Well, I think it is a shame," ventured Mrs. Jarr, "that Clara Mud. said Mrs. Jarr. "But if Mrs. Stryver ridge-Smith and Mrs. Stryver should and Clara Mudridge-Smith can get a making up. That's why I say this is have a quarrel and buy fine clothes lot of nice clothes because their husto make each other envious, from bands are making money out of the man, but it is never apparent to their wives until after breakfast.

A Bachelor Girl

By Helen Rowland

her, but he had just as ilef do so from a distance.

an forget it about three-quarters of the time.

between the two.

the garden of forgetfulness.

A sympathetic woman is like the rose which a man wears over hi

Any man can be an "ideal husband" whose mind is in his work, whose

While a woman is weeping over the ghost of a dead love in the graveyard of memory, a man is usually off pursuing a lot of little new loves in money made selling war supplies. If war, I shouldn't feel bad if I got some I never got any clothes unless I got clothes because my husband made some money out of the war also."

Reflections of

"But will you enjoy wearing your war uniform in front of the other the family provider on his something else again than the little than the little home coming the other everal war babies of Europe," exhaus say so, but just the same I do need a lot of nice clothes, and I will have an excuse to call on the little get some nice autumn clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the stocks of American most be willing to be a war bride or Clara Mudridge-Smith and Mrs. Stry

"Get it and wish: she inside the nice autumn clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes." The willing to be a war bride or Clara Mudridge-Smith and Mrs. Stry
"Get it and wish: she inside the nice autumn clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes." The willing to be a war bride or Clara Mudridge-Smith and Mrs. Stry
"Get it and wish: she inside the nice autumn clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes." The will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes. The clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes. The clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse to call on the clothes then I will have an excuse the clothes then I will have an excuse the clothes the clothes the clothes the cl "Certainly," was the reply. "If I ver both, and perhaps bring about a reconciliation. But I do hope that awful war will be over soon-but I'd like to have some nice clothes first." "Well," said Mr. Jarr, "I hope so,

Pop's Mutual Motor By Alma Woodward Copyright, 1915, by The Press Publishing Co. (The New York Evening World).

66 HONESTLY, the way you cherish that car!" began Ma. "To hear you go on about it, any one'd think you'd just bought it and hadn't taken out insurance yet. If people only knew that you had the springs all fixed up with parts of Willie's garters and that you stipple the shy spots with shoe blacking every time you take it out of the garage and that you have to use the pulmotor on the carbureter before it'll carburete, why, they'd think you were suffering from vacuum under the lid!" SENSE of humor is the balancing rod that keeps a man on life's

"You're very reckless about it, aren't shriek, "but I guess you'd miss it if it A girl's face is her "shop window," and most men are the sort of was stolen. You can leave a car out- lively than that of old, and imagina-

"What if they do? With the way a merely "clever" woman is like a dahlia-he knows he ought to admire anyway, or a near-blue scow like "LINED, with cardinal!" corrected list. Pop scornfully. "You're not talking It is no disadvantage to a man to be handsome. Dearie, provided he about a dress. And besides, with the punk luck I've been having in business heart is in his home and whose time, money and pleasures are divided all sorts of things."

"All right," said Pop, with the air of one shifting responsibility. "We'll take them to the theatre to-night in the car and I'll pay a boy to watch it during the show. But, remember, if anything happens to it, no weeping and wishing you hadn't done it."

There seems to be something the payers to the strick of start the thing after.

The same and a hound of cosmopolitan parentage and a dull the gasoline tank and a possible disasters made her shudder.

All this time Pop uttered never a syllable, but his glance was significant. "I don't see why you take such chances with your car, Mitt," remarked the customer. "We wouldn't out West."

During intermission Pop went out to happens to it, no weeping and wishing you hadn't done it."

During intermission Pop went out to

"How to get along with a husband" is the favorite theme of the scanned his face anxiously.

"It's all right," he teld her with a size hunk of chewing gum in the slot. and their cars. Without it she was tinge of sarcasm. "By that I mean A second later, the wife of the enter- lost! take a look. When he came back Ma the show. novelists, but it's the problem of how to get along without one that is

Editorials by Women

LAZINESS AND LUNACY.

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

OT merely ill health but insunity has now been traced directly to the dearth of view insunity has now been traced directly to the dearth of physical exercise among women. Says Dr. E. J. Danek, alienist: "Sitting around a small spartment. with trips to the back porch the only general form of exercise, makes people lonely, then sick and then insane."

Yet there are hundreds of New York women who don't even take the exercise of "trips to the back porch," since that appendage is mostly absent from city apartments. These women do little or no housework, have no business or profession outside their homes, step into a taxi or a trolley car whenever they pass beyond their own thresholds, and in general do their level best to atrophy muscles which were made for work. It is an utterly artificial existence; small wonder that it results in degeneration of body and brain-

Every woman, moreover, with the expenditure of a little time, ingenuity and resolution, can keep herself from becoming soft. Miss Pauline Furiong is telling Evening World readers daily how to have a home gymnasium in every spartment. The woman who engages neither in hard physical labor nor in athletic activity can ill afford to neglect such instruction.

It's all very well to loaf and invite your soul, but have a care lest too much loafing invite that terrible guest, madness,

The Stories Of Stories

Plots of Immortal Fiction Masterpieces

By Albert Payson Terhune

Copyright, 1916, by the Press Publishing Co. (The New York Evening World). NO. 51—THE MONKEY'S PAW. By W. W. Jacobs.

LD Mr. White and his wife and their son Herbert were honored one evening, at their suburban English cottage, by a call from White's boyhood chum, Sergt.-Major Morris (retired) of the British army. Among other amazing yarns of soldier life in India, the Sergeant-Major told of a monkey's paw which a Hindu fakir had converted into a talisman. The paw's owner, he said, might have three wishes from it. How he himself had come by it he did not make clear. But he produced the paw, by way of proving his story. The paw was a withered, disgusting looking little object.

No one of his three hearers really believed the soldier's silly tale that the paw was a talisman; but White prevailed on Morris to sell it to him for a trifle.

After the visitor had gone the old man held the Monkey's Paw in his right hand and, more in joke than not, said:

"I wish for two hundred pounds."

As he spoke he sprang back, dropping the paw and crying out:

"As I wished, it twisted in my hand like a snake!"
His wife and son laughed at the trick his imagination had played him. And as the two hundred pounds ($1,000) did not materialize, they were more than ever certain that the soldier was merely an amus-

Next morning Herbert went off to work. A few hours later a man came to the White cottage from Maw & Meggins's factory, where the young fellow was employed. The visitor, as gently as possible, broke the news that Herbert had just been killed in a machinery smashup.

"Maw & Meggins," he added "disclain all responsibility. They admit no liability at all. But in consideration of your son's services they wish to present you with a certain sum as compensation." "How much?" asked White, a premonition gripping him. "Two hundred pounds," was the reply. The stricken mother fell to the floor, unconscious. Ten nights later the bereft old couple sat listening to the wind that mouned outside their cottage. Suddenly Mrs. White exclaimed:

"The Monkey's Paw! Why didn't I think of it before? The other two wishes! We've only had one. Wish our boy alive again! We had the first wish granted. Why not the second?"

"A coincidence," stammered the old man. "Get it and wish!" she insisted. "He has been dead ten days," faltered her husband. "If he was too

"Bring him back!" she implored White tremblingly picked up the Monkey's Paw

"I wish my son alive again," he whispered The candle flickered and went out, leaving the listening couple in pitchy darkness. Long they sat thus. Nothing happened. Then at last through the silence a knock sounded on the front door-a knock so quiet and stealth; as to be scarce audible.

"It's Herbert!" screamed the mother. "I forgot the cemetery was two es away. What are you holding me for? I must open the doc "For God's sake, don't let It in!" shuddered the old man. "Let me go!" she wailed, as the strangely stealthy knock continued. "I'm coming, Herbert! I'm coming! She tore free from her husband and rushed to door. But White, with a horror-stricken memory of the mangled body he had seen drawn from the machinery, seized the Monkey's Paw and frantically breathed his third and last wisha wish that the nameless Thing outside might leave his doorstep and depart

at the Door.

As he voiced this terrified wish the knocking abruptly ceased. The mother had reached the front door and she three it wide open. The street lamp flickering opposite shone on a quiet and deserted road.

Wit, Wisdom and Philosophy gustus Caesar, Cosmos, Duke of Flor-ence, Gaston de Bois and others. ON YOUTH AND AGE.

By Lord Bacon. MAN that is young in years you?" repartees Pop, with a patient in thought as well as in age. And yet the invention of young men is more "shoppers" who are attracted by the showlest windows and never stop to wonder if there is anything behind them to correspond.

Oh, yes, there is a vast difference between the savage and the civilized side a place twenty times and not have anything happen to it. And like as not, the twenty-first time some one will take it."

Ively than that of our, and, as it were, minds better, and, as it were, more divinely. Nashideration of the end without consideration of the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and, as it were, more divinely. Nashideration of the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and, as it were, more divinely. Nashideration of the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and, as it were, more divinely. Nashideration of the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and, as it were, more divinely. Nashideration of the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and, as it were, more divinely. Nashideration of the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and, as it were, more divinely. Nashideration of the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and and it were, more divinely. Nashideration of the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and and it were, more divinely. Nashideration of the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and under the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and under the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and under the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and under the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and under the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and the end without constant into streams into their minds better, and the end without constant into streams into streams int are not ripe for action until they have cars are going down in price you could passed the meridian of their years, as get a much better one for the insur- it was with Julius Caesar and Septiance you've got on this relic. I'm crary mus Severus, of the latter of whom heart, a stupid woman is like a cabbage which he keeps in his kitchen, but to have a gray one piped with cardinal, it is said, "His youth was full of errors-yea, of evil passions," and yet he was the ablest Emperor of all the learners while men in age are a list. But reposed natures may do because authority followeth old well in youth, as it is seen in Au- and favor and popularity vouth.

Young men are fitter to invent than MAN that is young in years to looke there for execution than for may be old in hours if he have lost no time. But that happeneth rarely. For there is a youth in thought as well as in age. And yet them, but in new things abuseth them.

Young men in the conduct and man-agement of action embrace more than they can hold stir more than they too little, repent too soon and contest themselves with the mediccrity of success. Certainly it is good to com-pound employments of both, for the will be rood for the present because the virtues of either are may correct the defects of both, and good for suc-cessors that young men may be that it's still there. Of course, the kid tained customer moaned that her dress did steal it, the insurance company'd bust up the day before.

"Well, I think that customer of yours will think it's funny. Because When the girls admire him a young man takes it as a matter of course, but when a widow selects him for her attentions he thrills with the knowledge that he is being stamped with the approval of a connoisseur.

"Well, I think that customer of yours will think it's funny. Because in parts of the Middle West they use their cars for everything—cutting the lawn and moving their furniture and all sorts of things."

"Well, I think that customer of yours will think it's funny. Because in gum vender were playing mumble-in parts of the front seat; a bootback and a chew-ing sum vender were playing mumble-in parts of the Middle West they use their cars for everything—cutting the lawn and moving their customer of the front seat; a bootback and a chew-ing sum vender were playing mumble-in parts of the Middle West they use they care found it a convenient place in parts of the front seat; a bootback and a chew-ing sum vender were playing mumble-in parts of the Middle West they use they care for the found it a convenient place in parts of the first seat; a bootback and a chew-ing sum vender were playing mumble-in parts of the Middle West they use their cars for everything—cutting the lawn and moving their cars for everything—cutting the lawn and moving their cars for everything—cutting the lawn and moving the found in a convenient part of the found in grant parts of the seat customer of the found in grant parts of the seat customer of the found in grant parts of the seat customer of the found in grant parts of the found in grant part the gasoline tank and a possible disas-ter made her shudder.

All this time Pop uttered never a matter with the accelerator," said Pop. when he tried to start the thing after the show.

Quivering under the look Pop shoe at her, Ma tried to remember where the show.

Simultaneously, Ma smelled something the Angora robe. Their proximity to